Recovery Carrier Nomination Form

"Recovery carriers are people, usually in recovery from addiction, who make recovery infectious to those around them by their openness about their recovery experiences, their quality of life and character, and the compassion for service to people still suffering from alcohol and other drug problems." The Recovery Carrier role is not unique to a particular pathway of recovery, is not defined by age or gender, educational or social status. What they share in common is:

1. people are almost magnetically drawn to them;
2. they exude an energy the elicits confidence and readiness for action in those around them, and;
3. people who spend time with them and stay connected to them seem to recover and achieve a high quality of life in recovery. (William White)

Family members of persons in recovery may be nominated. Considering the above criteria, is there an individual whom you know who inspires others toward recovery?
